

The Old Doctors

Drew blood, modern doctors cleanse it

by the increased demand for Alterativa. It is now well known that most diseases are due, not to over-abundance

but to impurity of the blood; and it is equally well attested that no blood

medicines are so efficacious as Ayer's

Sarsaparilla.

"One of my children had a large sore break out on the leg. We applied simple remedies, for a while, thinking

the sore would shortly heal, but it grew worse and worse. We sought medical advice, and were told that an alternative medicine was necessary. Ayer's Sarsaparilla

being

Recommended

above all others, we used it with marvelous results. The sore healed and health and strength rapidly returned."

—J. J. Armstrong, Weimar, Texas.

"I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be an invaluable remedy for the cure of blood diseases. I prescribe it, and it does the work every time."—E. L. Foster, M. D.,

Manhattan, Kansas.

"We have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla

here for thirty years, and our recommendation is asked to name the best medicine for the cure of blood diseases. It is a true blood purifier, and its use is recommended by the best medical authorities."—T. W. Richmond, Bear

THE CLIMAX.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1888.

The matrimonial fever in Richmond is worse than the yellow fever in Jacksonville.

The work on the extensive residence of Dr. A. Wilkes Smith is in progress on West Main street.

Richmond is to have a City Directory. So much for numbering the houses and putting up the names of streets.

In stating the circulation of THE CLIMAX, last week, we put Union City at 25, when it should have been 55.

Mr. C. L. Seary has received letters patent in the United States and several European countries on his wonderful, combined ledger.

The Southern Homeopathic Medical Association will be held in Louisville, beginning Oct. 10th. Dr. Howard Crutcher is of the committee of arrangements.

Squire B. C. Hackett was in town on Monday, after a six weeks sickness with fever. He has bought of Overton Burin 60 acres of land at $80 per acre.

Read Covington & Mitchell's new advertisement in this issue of THE CLIMAX. You will find something that will interest you, and be of advantage to you also.

Wm. Boyd, who sojourned for a spell on Otter Creek, this county, has returned to his home in Tennessee. He is six feet seven inches high, and weighs only 140 pounds.

Mr. Yates, of the United States Topographical Survey, was here, last week. He says Richmond is his base for all Kentucky operations. It is centrally located and otherwise advantageous.

As administrator of his father, on Saturday, September 29th, Dr. George W. Evans will sell the personal property, and as agent of the heirs will sell the house and several lots in Richmond.

A cluster of apple five in number, has been sent to THE CLIMAX office by Mr. N. B. Brooks, of Speedwell. Three of them are ripe, and the other two nearly so. The apples are not grown together, but like grapes to the stem. The largest apple is two inches in diameter.

J. A. Craft, Democratic Elector for the Eighth Congressional District, will speak at the Court house in Richmond, Monday, Oct. 1st. The Republican Elector is respectfully invited to attend at each appointment and a division of time will be cheerfully accorded. Speaking at 1 o'clock P. M.

The Pa of Susie S.
The Farmers Home Journal, of Louisville, says: Hylas, the sire of the great Susie S., was developed as a 4-year-old, and made a record of 2:36, reducing it later to 2:24 1/2. Byron, the sire of her dam, made a 3-year-old record of 2:39 1/2 and was the first 3-year-old to beat 3 minutes. He trained for ten years and closed his turf career with a record of 2:25.

His right arm was torn off between the wrist and elbow, and broken above the elbow. The ribs were broken, and the jagged end of one driven into his lungs. Dr. Foster amputated the arm near the shoulder, and otherwise treated the unfortunate man, who is doing well, and will recover.

The Executors of Alexander Tribble, deceased, will, on Thursday, September 27, 1888, at 1 o'clock P. Yellow Fever.

Mayor Jacob Collins is doing a good work for the yellow fever sufferers. He called a meeting at the court house, Monday night, which proved successful, about $80 being collected. A committee of three from each of the four wards was appointed to solicit additional contributions. Mr. Bredell is arranging a concert to be given at an early day for the benefit of the yellow fever sufferers, and it will embrace the finest musical talent of the town.

Postmaster Willis has been taking up collections every day for a week, and has helped the cause wonderfully.

The churches took up collections on last Sunday for the same purpose. The disease is spreading in the South, and has attacked Decatur, Alabama, Jackson, Mississippi, and other points. It grows worse by day at Jacksonville.

At Jacksonville on Monday there were five deaths and 11 new cases, making a total of 217 deaths and 1,091 cases. The disease has reached Fernandina.

The Courier-Journal's relief fund has reached $3,000.

That Lexington editor was not so drunk as we reported.

Many of the Hung-ari-ans, who have come to this county, ought to be hung, but the law hasn't hung any yet.

"Water-works" is heard on every hand in Richmond. There is probably no danger of the vagrant act being put in force against the water, if it works intelligently.

Two young merchants heard a burglar in their store, one night, last week. One of them got a pair of pistols and the other an Indian club and a foot stick. They marched down stairs and around to the front door. They unlocked the door, pushed it open and stepped aside to allow the burglar to come out. He came. It was the smallest dog you ever saw.

THE LAST CONFEDERATE JOHNNY

CORR. MARCHING HOME.

[Macon (Ga.) Telegraph.]

Miles Kennedy, the last of the Confederates, has at last resolved his old home in Sumter county, and was welcomed in America in a royal manner.

He was there for the first time since he shouldered his gun in 1861 and went to the war. He was wounded near Richmond during the dying days of the Confederacy and was laid up for some time after Lee's surrender at Appomattox. He was nursed in a farmhouse six miles from Richmond, and there nursed until fully recovered by the daughter of the man at whose house he was staying. The war being over, and being solely without means, he married the girl and went to farming.

On the fourth day of last April he hitched up his faithful and only steed ten children and $8 in money, all he possessed, and turned the steer's head towards old Georgia. His travel was necessarily slow, and it was often that Mr. Kennedy had to stop on his way and work for money with which to purchase food for his steed and family. The children kept healthy all the way, only one of them being at all sick, but the steer was at one time taken down and for a time there were gloomy prospects for the old soldier and his brood. Finally, the steer got well, and on the eighth day of the month reached Macon. The 15th he got to Americus, his home. He was met some distance out by a delegation of citizens headed by the American brass band, and escorted to the court-house square. Prof. Van Riper was on hand, and photographed them beside the ex and wagon. Col. A. S. Cuts then formally welcomed him home in the presence of 1,000 people. By a slight effort, about $100 in money and provisions were raised for him and his dependent family.

THE BABEL BUILDING.

Which is to be Erected in Minneapolis.

A twenty-eight-story office building is to be erected at Minneapolis by L. S. Buffington, an architect of that city, who has obtained a patent on a method of iron building construction which, if practicable, threatens to revolutionize the art of modern building. The building is thus described:

"It consists of two continuous skeletons of iron, commencing on the iron footings and continuous laminated, riveted iron post and bracing, in size as they ascend; braced diagonally, after the manner of lattice bridge girders, and horizontally braced by the iron beams of each floor, which form an integral portion of the building. The whole frame is covered on the exterior by a substantial substance of absolute reliability. The exterior is formed of stone and copper. The stone is carried at each story, or of ten when necessary, by means of horizontal shelves of iron, the shelves themselves being carried by the substance of the building. The roof is to be of tile, except the apex, which will be formed into a glass lookout, from which a necessarily vast expanse may be viewed. The first story will be grand rotunda, with twelve elevators and two flights of stairs situated in the center. The elevators are arranged so that each two floors have their own elevator—that the passengers for the twenty-second or twenty-third story, for instance, may make the trip without stopping, thus expediting the service greatly. No wood-work will appear in the building except doors and window sashes. When finished no portion of the constructional iron will be visible. Contraction and expansion are provided for under the patents. Each office has its own safe or series of safes built in the outer wall and forming a part of their structure—which, the architect claims, is a feature never before used in the building. Another important consideration in the iron construction is the reduced thickness of the walls, as those on the exterior of the building do not in any part exceed 22 inches, thereby giving more light and air to the offices. The building does not weigh one-half as much as an ordinary masonry one of the same size, and is much cheaper and more quickly built. The building is 80 by 80 feet on the ground, 330 feet to the top of the glass, and contains 728 large offices, all of which are outside rooms."

THE INTELLIGENT BRITISH EDITOR.

New York Tribune.

A person does not need to be very old to remember the time when English journals displayed lamentable ignorance on American topics. Even the great newspapers of London made the most abominable mistakes about American affairs of late years, and the leading papers of Great Britain are becoming well posted on the current events in the United States. They have shown an especially intelligent grasp of political matters during the past few weeks. As an example we append an editorial from the London Daily Universe which is a fair sample of the clear and able discussion of the situation found in the English press.

"The news received this morning of the nomination for the presidency by the Democrats of Mr. Harrison. This places him in opposition to General Cleveland, nominated by the Republicans of Buffalo, Ohio. It is understood that a crisis is imminent, and that General Hayes, the present incumbent of the office, will retire to his farm in Boston."

"It seems that two other men have also been nominated as substitutes, in case the regular nominee should be killed during his campaign, which will be carried on with vigor. On the Republican ticket is Professor Morton, of Alaska, but at present living in Florida, though it is said that he claims to be a resident of the great agricultural state of Philadelphia. On the Democratic ticket is Dr. Thurman, a distinguished Italian, born near Rome in the early part of 1787. He has present conducted a gymnasium in the city of Kentucky and has a personal following, who refer to him affectionately as the old Roman."

"It is predicted that these nominations will call out a full vote. Mr. Harrison will make a thorough campaign, speaking at Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Lake Erie, Mammoth Cave and Oshkosh. He will then come East and address the people of San Francisco. General Cleveland who is especially strong with the soldier vote, having a brilliant record, gained by the gallant capture of a late number of Confederate flags, speak at Dismal Swamp, Montreal and other places. An opposition party mentions an address which he will deliver later in the season at a place called Salt River, but we know nothing of it. Mr. Harrison favors free-trade and a strong prohibitive duty on all exports. General Cleveland's enemies charge him with trying to influence votes by favoring a pension for every man who was in the army. Mr. Harrison has been in the legislature of New Orleans and in 1878 was mayor of Oregon. Much talk is heard about the bloody shirt, dead issues, the red bandana (a new variety recently propagated in Dakota), grangers, war taxes, barbs, planks, dark-colored horses, the solid South, carpet-baggers, the electoral university, etc., none of which is very clear at this distance, but which our correspondent is investigating. The Mugwump party, founded by Noah Webster, of Tennessee, is said to have joined the Greenback party, the Know Nothing party and the Federalists party, and if such is the case it puts forward a candidate it will compete matters still further. This party would control the undivided Chinese vote."

"The report that Mr. Blaine had declared his intention of deserting the Mugwump party is shown to be untrue by a special telegram published on our fifth page."—New York Tribune.

PRETTY TEA GOWNS.

How They Are Made and the Materials Used in Their Construction.

The maiden or the matron who does not possess a tea-gown can not be said to have a fashionable outfit, no matter how many fine dresses may hang in her wardrobe. Don't confuse a tea-gown with a Mother Hubbard wrapper, for the latter is only intended for morning wear, while you may as well appear in the former late in the afternoon or evening. A tea-gown is a Princess dress, opening over a loose front, while the back breathes are laid in gathers just below the waist line. Sometimes a basque effect is given by finishing the back with two little tabs, which fall over the gathers. The sleeves are nearly always half-fitting and trimmed with a band of velvet or silk. Often there is a tight coat sleeve underneath the open sleeve. Let me describe a very handsome tea-gown which I caught a glimpse of recently.

The material was goblin blue cashmere and the front white piece-lace, looped with bows of white watered ribbon in several places. A band of black velvet silk, which was sewed three rows of gold braid, extended down each side of the loose front and formed the collar and sleeve trimmings.

A gown made especially for tea-gowns is called "cut cashmere" and comes with a deep border, to be used for the front of the gown or to edge the skirt. This material costs $1.25 a yard and also yields a full pattern. Imagine a cream ground scattered with tiny sprays of peach-blossoms and a border of large peaches in exquisite, velvety tints and green leaves. I would prefer to finish the skirt with this border and have a full front of faint pink or olive green surah. Perhaps you would prefer a design of yellow roses and brown leaves on a cream or garnet ground with a border to match.

More inexpensive gowns are made of challs and have a front of plain cashmere. Several practical details at fifty cents a yard has been seen. One gown had a dark blue front leaves, and if made into a tea gown the front should be blue surah or light-weight cashmere. For the border who wishes a becoming gown may choose a white challs with a pale blue figure. A new idea is to lay plaits or tucks below the collar for a short distance, then allow the front to fall straight, tying in the fullness with ribbons at the waist. The collar may be a choker or turned over.

Tea gowns of Swiss muslin, with an embroidered front with long ends of red, blue, orange or violet ribbon, look as though especially intended for youthful matrons whose household cares sit lightly on their shoulders. For older ladies the ideal in mourning come tea gowns of black and white satin or toulard with a front of plain black—Philadelphia Press.

ESOP REVISED.

A Modern Version of the Fable of the Boy and the Wolf.

Once there was a Boy left to tend a flock of sheep and he became impelled by the spirit of mischief in the absence of spirits of another variety, he amused himself by crying "Wolf!" when no Wolf was nigh.

The people of the neighborhood were greatly terrified, and hastily arming themselves with whatever weapons they could command, rushed to the spot to defend the Sheep from the ravages of the Wolf.

When they discovered the April fool that was played upon them they were mad, but the Boy mocked them and laughed and called them "Rubes," a term the sheep did not understand.

He fooled them several times that way, but at length the Wolf did come, and when he cried out no one believed him and no one hurried to his assistance. You may expect to read that the Boy was torn in pieces and devoured, and you are doubtless prepared to say it served him right, but nothing of the kind happened. He was a kind of a Boy.

He had made arrangements with one of Barnum's agents whose business it was to secure animals for the Greatest Show on Earth, and when the Wolf put in an appearance with an appetite a week old, expecting to make a meal of the Boy, as had been usual in all previous versions of this fable, he was ensnared by the agent's men and shipped to the Zoological Garden for identification, classification and moral instruction, preparatory to being put on the road. The boy was rewarded with a position as candy butcher with the show, where he amused a handsome fortune in a single season by dexterously counting both ends of dollar bills in making change to customers.

The Boy became a Wolf himself.—Texas Siftings.

A HOTEL MOVEMENT.

Story of a Boniface Who Was Willing to Omit His Head.

At one of the country hotels, after the fourth or fifth execrable meal, I determined to speak to the landlord. He was a mild-mannered man, and I hesitated to speak to him behind the house and began with:

"Say, do you realize that you are keeping one of the poorest, meanest hotels in all Tennessee?"

"Why, no," he exclaimed in great surprise.

"You have the poorest beds I ever slept in, and I've slept in a hog-pen once or twice."

"You don't say?"

"Your cook ought to be killed with a club, and your cross-eyed waiter should have been in the grave long ago."

"Well! Well!"

"How you have managed to get along and keep the place beats me. I don't want to be mean, but I want to ask you if you can't improve things a little?"

"I can, and I'll cheerfully do it, sir."

"It's for your benefit to please your guests, of course?"

"Of course it is, and I'm bound to do it. I'll make an improvement in less than half an hour."

In about twenty minutes he came across the hall, smiling and rubbing his hands, and said:

"Well, I've made it. I've cut the cook's wages down one dollar a month and swapped that cross-eyed waiter for a new one."

"But your life things have got to go different here, if it costs every cent I take in. Can you suggest any thing else?"

"—Detroit Free Press.

A deer in a park at Stockpole, Pembroke, England, recently got its head entangled in the seat of a swing, nineteen inches by nine in size, and carried it off. He scared all the other deer in the park nearly to death, and the keepers started after him. He hid for a day in the space between a fallen tree and a pigsty, and when discovered started off like mad, and for a beginning leaped a gate five feet nine inches high. The warden of the park, six feet high, was next taken, and they hoisted him up. When he was finally shot he still bore the five-pound handicap of the swing-borne on his horns.
